NOMINATION IN THE THIRD CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT.

MR. EDITOR:-The Democratic Congressional Convention of the Third District is called to meet in Clinton on the 23d day of July. As the men nominated by that convention will, in all probability, represent the district in the Fifty-third Congress, it and defeat it as anyone else has to deis the duty of all voters to give earnest and serious attention to the matter is being done it is only the greater from this day till the nomination is proof that you are needed, and if you made.

The voters of this district are agricultural to a degree unsurpassed, per-North Carolina. Nowhere else, wrought by the Farmers' Alliance no other section can the Alliance boast of more intelligent and patriotic course. members. For, if at first the charge of ignorance was justly brought against us, the urgency and univer. ATTENTION, WOOL GROWERS sality of agricultural depression are now crowding our ranks with the true yeomanry of the land-men of intelligence, lovers of peace, of counfathers; men so thoroughly conservative that they will attempt the resto. rights, not by means of rude revolution, but by the gentler means of quiet and determined reformation. While to those who wilfully or careful handling we make you a piece of through ignorance misunderstand goods that will give satisfaction. them, they seem an "inconvenient multitude," they are of a truth the thoughtful conservators of our national welfare. Neither are they third party enthusiasts nor "hay-seed socialists" as denominated by some. If they are Democrats they will remain Democrats, seeking redress of wrongs through the organized Democracy. Yet they are men who will not permit their "earnest to slacken into play." Their attachment to right is stronger than their love of a meaningless party name. For their principles are inborn, inherited of fathers who re ceived fixed notions of finance and liberty at the hands of that immortal apostl, and preserver of equal rights, who with strength mightier than that of Hercules, crushed at one stroke the Bank of the United States, that mighty lion of monopoly which then threatened all liberty and property. The name of Jackson is dear to them, and when shall we find a more satis. factory exponent of Democracy?

We are endeavoring to establish "peace on earth" upon the just, and, therefore, enduring foundation of equal rights, and we are exercising "good will toward men." Therefore, while I would not say aught in dis paragement of any man whose name has been mentioned in connection with the Congressional nomination, least of all would I advise the rejection or the acceptance of any man solely on the ground of his profession or occupation. Yet, under the circumstances, the man who shall represent this constituency acceptably, must manifest certain well-defined characteristics. He should not be narrow-minded as a fanatical enthusiast, but broad-minded enough to feel that this body politic is made up of many members, every one of which shall receive due consideration. He should love liberty because it is the divine right of all men. He should love the constitution because it is even now, if executed, as it was in the beginning, the death warrant of all monopoly and oppression. He must hate oppression. He must be a Democrat in name and in action. If he has legislative experience, it is well; if he shall have a controling desire to represent the will of the people, that is better; if he cannot feel that a servant is bound by the expressed will of his master, his unfitness is at once complete.

It may be possible in this district to find such a man in any calling. But if such a one can be found in our own | son 12.05 p. m., returning leave Henderranks, why should farmers seek for him elsewhere? For who can more intimately know and appreciate our condition than one who feels the same oppression that we feel, and whose intelligence at the same time enables him to comprehend the cause of our distress and its remedy? Or who shall make a more uncompromising advocacy of our principles and ALLIANCEMAN.

"I'LL QUIT."

Once in awhile an Alliance will take some action which some one cannot approve. Forthwith his back is up and he proclaims to the world that he'll quit. That is not the proper thing to do. Were you in earnest when you joined the Alliance? Did you think the farmers had any nationally or otherwise, contrary to ington and Asheville and Hot Springs. Don't you believe organization is about the only way that farmers can make themselves recognized by those who rule the destinies of this country? Then is this the time to quit? If your Alliance or the rest of the order desires the address of J. D. R. Allen, G. is doing something you think it ought B. Watkins J. C. Freeman, J. C. Moore, led off in improper channels? Who is leading it there? Have not you just as much influence properly exerted, to counteract the influence of those who would divert it from its purpose? Do you think somebody is working a trick for the benefit of some party? Are not you as shrewd as anybody in the order, and have not you as much ability to detect a trick vise and carry it out? If these things are in earnest you will stick the closer. Whenever we see a member get mad and fly off at every little thing that haps, by that of any other section of goes wrong, I take it for granted that he is not in earnest, or that he moreover, have the principles of the considers himself not sharp enough to great reformation that is being compete with his fe low members. Stand by the ship; keep your hand taken a firmer hold than here; and in upon the rudder, and if she inclines to go wrong, keep her in her proper
